

Department	Name	Position	Reason
Commerce	John Fernandez	Assistant Secretary Of Commerce For Economic Development	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • John Fernandez approved the spending of $1 million of taxpayers' money for the demolition of a building on private property. He later took a job with the property's owner. • Under his mayoralty, Bloomington chose a company led by a partner at Fernandez's wife's law firm to redevelop a city parking lot. This well-connected company was chosen over a more-experienced company. • Fernandez served on the board of the Monroe County Solid Waste Management District. The organization was mismanaged, and Hoosier Disposal took over waste management. Fernandez later took a job as counsel with Hoosier Disposal. • John Fernandez has appearance-of-corruption issues having personally benefitted too much from his "public service."
State	Karen Kornbluh	Permanent Representative of the U.S. to Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Kornbluh is quite liberal having drafted the 2008 Democrat Party platform. • Her husband works for a firm that lobbies the State Department.

Federal Labor Relations Authority	Julia A. Clark	General Counsel	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Julia Clark profited from her time at the Anti-Trust Division by immediately joining an antitrust law firm upon leaving the Justice Department. • Clark served as counsel for a violent homeless “union,” the National Union of the Homeless, which staged “bath-ins” at public fountains, seized property, and clashed with police.
Labor	Patricia Smith	Solicitor	Designed a program in NY to use community activist groups to enforce wage and hour laws. This essentially deputizes union thugs to shake down employers that are organizing targets of the union. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Business groups pointed out the problems stating: “To give quasi-enforcement capabilities to certain, seemingly hand-selected, constituencies sets a troubling precedent that could spread among the spectrum of state agencies.” • The New York Post pointed out the problems of the program stating: “No reasonable person objects to state efforts to fairly, fully enforce the law. But empowering interest groups between the state and the citizen can quickly distort the law's purpose.”

State	Arturo Valenzuela	Assistant Secretary for Western Hemisphere Affairs	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Arturo Valenzuela sits on the boards of radical left-wing organizations. • He has defended Chavez and favors better relations with Cuba. • Valenzuela also appears to lack the knowledge and temperament for the job.
Executive Office of the President	Cass R. Sunstein	Admin. Off. Of Information and Regulatory Affairs, OMB	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Cass Sunstein would like to give animals and even property the right to sue. • He favors limits on the First and Second Amendments. • Sunstein would like another Bill of Rights to guarantee employment, food, clothing, shelter, education, recreation, and health care.
Justice	Christopher Schroeder	Office of Legal Policy Assistant Attorney General	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Chris Schroeder despises cost-benefit analysis and thinks that it should be done after regulations are in place. • He thinks that overregulation is not a problem and that industry should be forced to use the best technology available. • He views conservatives as enemies of the environment and public health.

Justice	Dawn Johnsen	Assistant Attorney General	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • She spent years litigating abortion issues for NARAL and ACLU. • Equated pregnancy to slavery. • Fierce critic of the Office of Legal Counsel's activity's during the Bush Administration.
Judiciary	David F. Hamilton	United States Circuit Judge for the 7th Circuit	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • He currently serves as district court judge and was overturned with strong language by the 7th Circuit in a parental notification law case. Also has issued decisions prohibiting clergy from mentioning Jesus in prayers before state legislatures. • Previously served as Vice President for Litigation and Board Member, Indiana branch of the American Civil Liberties Union. • Struck down a provision that would have allowed sex offenders' computers to be searched long after their sentences had been served.

Federal Election Commission	John J. Sullivan	Commissioner	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Longtime union counsel in election cases. • FEC regulations already strongly favor unions compared to other entities and such concern exists about how he would push the FEC regulations as regards issues such as “member communications” a loophole that unfairly benefits unions while muzzling other entities.
Justice	Mary L. Smith	Assistant Attorney General, Tax Division	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No tax law experience. • She hasn’t litigated tax issues, written any papers on tax issues, or given any speeches on tax issues. • She hasn’t even taken a Continuing Legal Education course on tax law issues.
Justice	Preet Bharara	U.S. Attorney, Southern District of New York	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Chief Legal Counsel to Sen. Schumer which shows that he is hyper partisan • Bharara become the point man on the firing of the US attorneys • As point man he “immediately jumped on the allegations...”, tried to “prove wrongdoing by the Bush Administration”, and was to “make the case the Bush Administration obstructed justice.”

Justice	Tom Perez	Assistant Attorney General, Civil Rights Division	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Believes that institutions of higher education should use race as a factor in deciding which students they accept.• Perez served on the board of CASA de Maryland, an organization advocating for non-enforcement policies regarding immigration laws.
Commerce	Francisco J. Sanchez	Under Secretary for International Trade	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Francisco Sanchez showed himself to be emotionally unstable and untrustworthy.• Sanchez served as president of a company that went bankrupt as well as on the boards of two troubled companies and a troubled charity.